

When  $h$  varies from 0.1 to 1, we take each sample out in the given training dataset and make classification with the rest samples, then calculate the classify accuracy rates corresponding to different  $h$  values. Finally we decide  $h$  as the number generates the highest accuracy rate.