

When  $k$  varies from 1 to 10, we take each sample out in the given training dataset and make classification with the rest samples, then calculate the classify accuracy rates corresponding to different  $k$  values. Finally we decide  $k$  as the number generates the highest accuracy rate.